

Alejandro Villalpando

September 1, 1964 - April 27, 2026

Alejandro Villalpando was a man of great character. If only one word could describe him, it would be love. He loved his wife, his family, and helping those in need. He was a faithful husband, a devoted father and stepfather, and an incredible grandfather.

He found joy in being surrounded by family, cherishing quality time with his wife, and sharing laughter with friends and neighbors. Alejandro had a generous and selfless spirit. In many ways, he became known as the “community husband,” always willing to lend a hand—especially to his widowed neighbors—helping with tasks that were physically difficult or challenging for them to do.

He carried many titles—“Babes,” “Dad,” “Pompa,” “Papi Alex,” “Grandpa,” “Prieto,” “Nino,” and “Tío”—a reflection of the many lives he touched. Alex embraced roles others might not have, becoming a father figure to his nieces and nephews, and a loving grandfather to his stepdaughters’ children. He earned these titles not by obligation, but through the unconditional love he gave so freely to everyone around him.

Above all, Alex’s greatest love was his wife. She was his priority, his partner, and his soulmate. Wherever he went, she was by his side—an inseparable bond built on deep love, devotion, and a shared life full of meaning.

Alex has left a big hole in all of our hearts and a deep void in our lives, for he was truly one of a kind. His wife, family, children, and grandchildren will miss him immensely. His smile was contagious—marked by his chubby cheeks and unmistakable laugh—and it brought joy to everyone around him. He was also known for his love of football, especially his unwavering loyalty to the Chargers. He gave us countless beautiful memories that we will carry with us for generations to come.

Alejandro Villalpando is survived by his loving wife, Sylvia, his two sons, Alex Jr. and Anthony, his three stepdaughters, Michelle, Diana, and Sonya, as well as his grandchildren, and extended family, all of whom will continue to honor his legacy of love, kindness, and selfless generosity.
